

Babylon backs the launch of ‘Contract for the Web’

26/11/2019

Babylon is proud to back the ‘Contract for the Web’, the first ever global plan of action to make our online world safe and empowering for everyone.

We are passionate about making technology that improves people’s lives, and making it accessible and affordable to everyone. Our mission is to do that for healthcare and The World Wide Web Foundation, led by Sir Tim Berners-Lee, wants to do it for the internet.

As a provider of healthcare, we take our responsibility extremely seriously. In line with the Contract for the Web we are determined to develop technology that can support the best in humanity. We want to do it by putting people in control of their own healthcare, enabling them to take control of their data and protect their privacy.

The web is one of the most powerful tools we’ve ever had to transform our lives for the better and we want to ensure its power for good is not put under more threat.

We must take action to for the #WebWeWant. That’s why we back the ‘Contract for the web’.

To learn more, visit the contractfortheweb.org/action

To learn more about our privacy policy, click here

Need more info?

Contact our PR team on press@babylonhealth.com or +44 (0)20 3848 7316